"Faces, Souls, and Painted Crows" chronicles the life of the protagonist, Paul Reiter, from his humble beginnings in a war torn village in the Alps to a successful cosmetic surgery practice in Hollywood. The obstacles he encounters along the way shape and strengthen him, but also cause him to question his role as a surgeon who erases the wrinkles of time. Attempting to justify this work with the rich and famous, he travels to the Baja peninsula on weekends to provide medical care to a poor Mexican village. Throughout the book we meet charming and unique characters from both worlds and witness the transformation of Dr. Reiter as he delves into the mysterious connection between the face and the soul and the healing power of forgiveness.
