Il contributo illustra il processo di conoscenza e recupero, fondato su restauro conservativo e valorizzazione funzionale, del seicentesco Palazzo Armano di Grosso Canavese, Torino. La lettura storico-critica e la caratterizzazione del manufatto si sono avvalse delle tecniche di rilevamento, integrando rilievo geometrico manuale e strumentale, fotoraddrizzamento, elaborazione di immagini ad alta risoluzione, per la miglior comprensione dell'architettura e di materiali e degrado. L'uso della rappresentazione virtuale ha inoltre sostenuto e indirizzato le scelte di conservazione e/o trasformazione, simulando l'esito formale prodotto da diverse ipotesi di intervento. | Palazzo Armano in Grosso Canavese. Integrated survey and virtual simulation – This article illustrates a knowledge-gathering study used to develop a conservative restoration and enhancement project of seventeenth-century Palazzo Armano in Grosso Canavese (Turin). The historical/critical interpretation and characterisation of the building exploited integrated manual and instrumental metric-dimensional survey techniques, image rectification, and high resolution image processing in order to acquire a better understanding of the architecture, materials and deterioration. In addition, the use of virtual representation also influenced and guided decisions regarding conservation and/or transformation by simulating the formal outcome of several different intervention options. | Facing English text
