These are two short plays written about the adventures of the famous Mountie Sergeant Pressley of the north. In the first play he has been assigned to investigate a bank robbery along with his side kick Grumpley and invisible but faithful dog Ghost. Along the way they discover that the damsel Nellie is in distress. Along the way he must spar with the obnoxious Snyderley who is also the bank manager. The second play finds our dashing hero breaking in a new assistant, a young chinese fellow that continually is setting the trash can on fire. And his oblivious dog Scout is nothing more than a four footed tongue. There are numerous twists to this tail where nothing goes as it should and the final twist will leave you laughing your dog off.
